

Brecksville-Broadview Heights Board of Education Building Cleveland, OH

THE PROBLEM

The Brecksville-Broadview Heights School District Board of Education (BOE) building was 25-30 years old and in need of a new HVAC rooftop system that fit the existing curb and ductwork of the building. The building owner also wanted to avoid shutting down the office while the work was being complete. In addition, the system had to be installed without running ductwork throughout the building, while providing maximum comfort at an affordable cost.

THE SOLUTION

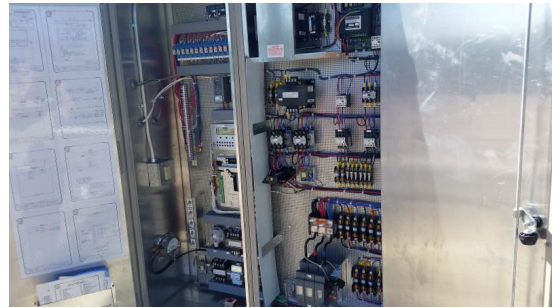

Seasons-4 provided the BOE building with a rooftop system that would work with the existing architecture and fit the specific performance requirements. With 45 years of service in the HVAC market, Seasons-4 was able to customize a system that efficiently provided maximum comfort at minimal operating costs. Both rigging and start-up were completed the same day resulting in minimal shut down of the office.

Additional benefits of Seasons-4:

- Latest technologies available to improve efficiency
- Guaranteed to fit the existing foot print
- Field measurements by a factory engineer
- Installs in eight hours or less
