

2018 is Jacco's 50th year in business!

To celebrate this milestone, we are sharing a monthly feature that highlights an aspect of Jacco's past, present and future plans for our company's continued client satisfaction and growth.

Jacco has been a proud supplier of Energy Labs Custom Air Handling Solutions since 2014. This month, we want to tell you-our customers, clients and friends-about some fun facts about Energy Labs!

Energy Labs has been around for over 40 years (the big 5-0 sure comes quick - we would know). Ray Irani, the president of Energy Labs, is originally from Iran. He immigrated to the US in the late 1960's where he attended and received his Master's Degree in Mechanical Engineering from Purdue.

When Ray left a consulting position with Syska Hennessy Group, he bought into what is now Energy Labs Inc. At the time, Energy Labs Inc.'s only products were direct and indirect cooling - then and now very efficient low cost air conditioning units - but the company was not doing very well.

Ray bought out the current partners at the time and added new ones, consisting of several friends from DMG - a LA-based HVAC provider Ray had worked for at one point. Together, Ray and his partners started manufacturing in the parking lot. This was the beginning of what Energy Labs Inc. has now become today.

After starting out only manufacturing and holding patents on, direct and indirect evaporative cooling, Energy Labs is currently a premium manufacturer of custom air handling, custom air-cooled and evaporative-cooled roof top DX units, custom Indirect and Direct Evaporative Cooling and Energy Recovery Systems.

Energy Labs is now becoming more recognizable as a major player in the custom, hyper-scale Data Center Market, which is why they have been recently acquired by Vertiv - a world leader in data center air conditioning formally known as Liebert.

Some recognizable clients they have had over the years:

Walt Disney Concert Hall
Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum
UCLA Medical Center
San Diego Convention Center
